LORD ALLENBY IN DANGER

Discovery Of Plot Against His Life.

TOUR CURTAILED AFTER ARRIVAL IN JAVA

London, Yesterday.
The revelation of a secret hitherto only known by the British Consul and high officials in the Dutch East Indies discloses that Lord Allenby's recent sudden curtailment of his tour in the Dutch East Indies was occasioned by the discovery of a plot against his life.
Notification of the existence of the plot was given to the police authorities by the International Intelligence Department at Washington some days after Lord Allenby's arrival in Java, following his tour of Malaya.
Personal descriptions of three non-Dutch subjects who were involved were telegraphed and immediate measures were taken to ensure Lord Allenby's safety.
Lord Allenby, however, realising that he would be incessantly shadowed by an armed escort, changed his plans and made a fictitious booking to fly to Belawan and returned to Sumatra and from there to England on January 13.
Lord and Lady Allenby left England in December last, the former stating that his visit was unofficial and that he was going "purely for fun."—Reuter.

BIGGER NAVY FOR JAPAN

Will Demand Increased Treaty Ratio.

Tokyo, Yesterday.
Japan will demand a change in ratio in the London and Washington Naval Treaties, declared the Japanese Navy Minister Admiral Otsuki, when replying to interpellations in the Diet regarding the Japanese policy at the forthcoming Naval Conference.
Replying to further questioning, Admiral Otsuki indicated the likelihood of the Government revising the Japanese Disarmament plan which was presented at Geneva in December, 1932, for the purpose of replacing the existing Naval Treaties, as other Powers have changed their own proposals since then.—Reuter.

CHINA'S TRADE TREATIES.

Revision With Britain And America.

Nanking, Yesterday.
In an interview with Reuter, a spokesman of the Chinese Foreign Office to-day confirmed the Washington and Peking reports of the Chinese proposal for a revision of the Sino-American and Sino-British trade treaties.
The spokesman added that the Foreign Office is releasing an official statement either late to-day or to-morrow.—Reuter.

BRITAIN'S POOR TRADE ORGANISATION

"Unable To Compete With Japan."

OUTSPOKEN COMMENTS BY SIR HARRY MCGOWAN

London, Yesterday.
Great Britain has been outbid in competitive exchange depreciation; she is unable to compete with the low wages and long hours of Japan, and she is not so efficiently organised in industry.

These three factors have hampered Britain's trade, declared Sir Harry McGowan, Chairman of Imperial Chemical Industries, in a speech at a banquet in Birmingham of the Jewellers and Silversmiths' Association.
Sir Harry McGowan recently returned from the Far East, and in connection with the second factor, he declared that he found in Japan no signs of malnutrition, lack of physical energy or discontent.

If Japan could efficiently organise, so could Britain, Sir Harry asserted. Organisation was of paramount importance, but price was the decisive factor.

The customer, he said, was always right, and the Japanese were pioneers in enterprise and imagination in trying to attract customers. Therefore, British representatives should be first-class on the technical besides the commercial side.

Long credits on Eastern markets were also an important factor in competition, he said.

Sir Harry McGowan said he had received the ex-vice-Minister of Foreign Affairs' assurance that the Japanese Government policy was harmonious to Anglo-Japanese industrial relations.

He was of the opinion that if a statesmanlike attitude was not adopted, in the present clash of interests, conditions in the next few years would become more acute.—Reuter.

BRITAIN AROUSED BY FRENCH QUOTAS.

Official Speaks With "Brutal Candour."

Paris, Yesterday.
Speaking with "brutal candour" which would leave no possible room for ambiguity, the Parliamentary Secretary to the Board of Trade, Dr. E. L. Burgin, in his speech to the British Chamber of Commerce, asserted that the British Government considered the French quota proposals as unacceptable and, in the true spirit of the Anglo-French partnership, he must say that such discrimination would not be tolerated.

The British Minister would notify the French Government of Britain's decision to take action if the policy of discrimination continued, he said.—Reuter.

LONDON SILVER MARKET.

Forward 19-5/16 19-5/16
The London on New York cross-rate at closing time to-day was 4.98-1/8 compared with 4.94-3/8 at yesterday's closing. — Our Own Correspondent.

FAVOURABLE U.S. TRADE BALANCE

EXCESS OF EXPORTS OF $59,000,000.

GOLD PRICE OF U.S. DOLLAR HIGHEST SINCE JAN. 15

London, Yesterday.

Based on the London gold price the American dollar is now worth 62.94 gold cents, the highest price since President Roosevelt's Congressional message on January 5.

The United States trade returns for December, showing exports exceeding imports by U.S.$59,000,000, as compared with U.S.$34,000,000 in December 1932, has impressed the market.

Well-informed quarters, however, believe that the favourable balance, which is attributed to the impetus given to exports by the cheapness of the dollar, is liable to be offset, firstly, by the gradual rise in American prices (which is the main object of President Roosevelt's monetary experiment) and, secondly, by the possibility of foreign competitors in the world market retaliating by lowering their price level.—Reuter.

GOLD TRANSFER PROTEST

Federal Reserve Want To Know Dollar Value.

New York, Yesterday.
The Federal reserve officials have protested formally against the transfer of gold from the Federal Reserve to the Treasury in exchange for gold certificates unless President Roosevelt first issues a proclamation fixing exactly the gold content of the dollar.

The morning newspapers are of the opinion that the release of U.S.$5,162,700 worth of earmarked foreign gold by the Federal Reserve Bank indicated an exchange of United States gold in London for British gold in the United States, thus marking the beginning of the repatriation of some of the gold purchased abroad by America.

CHAUTEMPS CABINET TO RESIGN

ANOTHER FRENCH POLITICAL CRISIS.

THOUSANDS IN STAVISKY DEMONSTRATIONS

Paris, Yesterday.

The French Government's dilemma is almost certain to be solved by the resignation of the Cabinet, according to political circles.

It is believed that the Premier, M. Camille Chautemps, will refuse if asked to form a new Ministry.

The question of a successor has already been discussed, and M. Herriot and M. Daladier, both former Premiers, are mentioned as probables.

MINISTER OF JUSTICE RESIGNS

Paris, Later.

The French Minister of Justice, M. Reynaldy, has resigned.—Reuter.

It is now anticipated that the Minister of Justice, M. Reynaldy, will resign to-day, whereupon the Cabinet may resign en-bloc.

While the fate of the Government is hung in the balance, further Stavisky riots occurred when thousands of demonstrators from various points of the city attempted to reach the Chamber. Police squads continually broke up columns of demonstrators who quickly re-formed.

The demonstrators were singing the "Marseillaise" and shouting, "down with robbers."

All attempts to reach the Chamber failed.—Reuter.

The present French Cabinet was formed by M. Chautemps on November 27 following the fall of the Sarraut Government on November 24, and with the exception of M. Reynaldy, who served in the Herriot Government in 1924, and M. Morehanda, all the Ministers held office in the Sarraut Government.

The first success of the Chautemps' Cabinet was the passing of the Finance Bill which had caused the defeat of the three preceding Governments.

A crisis was, however, precipitated on January 7, following the arrest of M. Garat, a Radical-Socialist member of the Chamber of Deputies, and Mayor of Bayonne, in connection with the issue of more than $6,000,000 worth of fraudulent bonds on behalf of the Bayonne Municipal pawnbroking establishment.

As a sequel to the exposure, M. Chautemps demanded the resignation of M. Dallimier, the Minister for Colonies, on the grounds that the latter had warmly recommended the faked bonds in letters to a Russian swindler, Stavisky, who organised the issue, and who shot himself on January 8. M. Dallimier complied with the Premier's demand and averted the resignation of the entire Cabinet.

Following the fateful debate on the bond fraud, the Chamber passed two votes of confidence in the Chautemps Government on January 12.

CRAWFORD DEFEATED BY PERRY

Holder Not Seen At His Best.

AUSTRALIAN TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIP

Sydney, Yesterday.

Fred Perry, British lawn tennis ace, completed his "double" to-day when he beat Jack Crawford, the holder, in straight sets to win the Australian Championship.

The scores were 6-3, 7-5, 6-1.
On Friday, Perry and G. P. Hughes won the Doubles title by beating Don Turnbull and Adrian Quist in a five-set final.

Perry displayed great form throughout to-day's match, but Crawford was not seen at his best. The Australian Davis Cup captain served badly and often netted his backhand returns.

Perry's stinging forehand drives repeatedly forced Crawford into errors. The challenger's assaults to the net were well-timed and invariably successful.

It was Perry who beat Crawford in the final of the American National Championship last year, thus robbing the Australian of the record of possessing the four major titles in the world—he had already won the Wimbledon, French, and Australian titles.

Tilden slightly sprained his ankle in the fourth set when Vines drew on level terms. Limping painfully in the final set, he succeeded in annexing only one game.—Reuter.

Toast To Ex-Kaiser Unhonoured.

"STORM TROOPS" BREAK-UP OFFICERS' CEREMONY

Berlin, Yesterday.

A dramatic incident occurred at the gathering of the members of the National Officers' League which was held to celebrate the ex-Kaiser's seventy-fifth birthday, yesterday.

Shortly before midnight, lorry loads of police and Nazi "Storm Troops" surrounded the building. When the officers, according to custom, rose on the stroke twelve to toast the ex-Kaiser, the police burst into the room, crying "hands up."

Officers who were wearing the uniform of the Imperial regime were ordered to proceed home, and the toast remained unhonoured.

Shanghai, Yesterday.

Ten thousand men, women and children are drowned, frozen to death or missing in Hopei and Honan Provinces in which 70 districts have been ravaged by the Yellow River flood.

In addition, thousands are reported homeless in the inundated districts. Freezing weather, and jagged ice-cakes swirling in the turbulent waters are endangering the lives and hampering the work of the relief squads.

A number of boats laden with supplies of clothing and medicine were smashed by ice-blocks, and three relief workers drowned.

Reports are infrequent and unconfirmable owing to the lack of communication, but local officials of the Flood Relief Committee state that the situation is most serious.

Chapter XVII.—A STRANGE HONEYMOON.

(By GERALD BURRARD.)

It was in the early afternoon when he awoke, and the sun was very hot.

Phyllis was already awake and seated by her father holding his hand. Geoffrey saw at once that the missionary had told her of his fears about himself and his desire concerning them. Her eyes were wet with tears, but she looked bravely into her father's face.

"Geoffrey," called Mr. Merridew, and his voice was painfully feeble, although the words were clear, "the time has come. First let us have another meal, as Sher Khan and Jogaroo have killed some more pigeons."

The Pathan brought Geoffrey two more birds, freshly roasted. "Come, sahib, eat. The miss-sahib has already eaten, as have Jogaroo and myself. We have been having good shikar (hunting)."

"Yes, they have done splendidly. As soon as you have eaten, Geoffrey, I want to conduct the service which will make you and Phyllis man and wife. Phyllis dear, here is the ring. It was your mother's wedding-ring, and I have worn it on my little finger ever since she died, when you were five years old. Thank God, those men did not take it from me."

Geoffrey soon finished his meal, and then Mr. Merridew had Jogaroo summoned.

"I would like him to be present. Although he has never accepted Christ, he is all a Christian should be in deed and, I think, thought. He is a friend."

The ceremony was brief and yet marvellously impressive. Mr. Merridew was unable to stand alone, and was supported by the fierce old Pathan on one hand and the faithful Jogaroo on the other. His voice rose almost to its full strength as he repeated the final blessing while Geoffrey and Phyllis knelt before him. But it was his last effort, for it was only his force of will and character which had enabled him to endure so long. As Geoffrey and Phyllis rose he swayed and tottered. Sher Khan lifted him up in his arms and laid him down once more on the sleeping-bag. There he lay for a minute with closed eyes, a look of great content on his noble face. Then he held a hand each to his daughter and son-in-law.

"I am now very happy. Grieve not, Phyllis, remember I am very happy. I feel that you will win through to freedom together."

Still clasping their hands, his gaze wandered first to Jogaroo and then to Sher Khan.

"May God bless you both, my friends, and reward you for your loyal friendship."

He smiled at Phyllis and closed his eyes. A tremor passed over his face and his grip relaxed. All was over.

Geoffrey stole quietly away, leaving Phyllis alone with her dead father a space of time, while he and his two men immediately set about preparing a grave. They had no tools beyond their knives, but at last the work was done, and as they rested Geoffrey saw Phyllis approaching. Tears were glistening in the corners of her eyes, but her smile was brave. She saw what they had done and smiled again in thanks.

Reverently Geoffrey and Sher Khan carried the body to the grave, and Geoffrey repeated what he could of the burial service, while Phyllis stood beside him. They filled in the shallow grave with earth, sand, and stones, and laid a cross of larger stones upon the top.

The sun was setting when Sher Khan gave a warning hiss. There, half a mile away, the evening light shining full upon him, was a man on horseback sitting motionless and watching them. Geoffrey seized the Pathan's glasses and saw he was a Tibetan, but even as he looked the stranger wheeled his pony round and rode rapidly away.

"We must hurry. There is no time to lose. The man is without doubt one of the 'Tiger's' scouts." Sher Khan set the example by walking quickly towards the ponies. Geoffrey and Jogaroo immediately followed suit, and in a very few minutes the ponies had been caught and saddled in spite of their utmost protests.

"We are the two heaviest, Sher Khan, so we will rest our last night's ponies. Jogaroo, tie the baggage on to this mare," and he pointed to the one which Sher Khan had ridden. "I will lead, my own mount free, and we can use it as a spare."

Phyllis joined them, having rolled up the bedding. "I have said my good-bye," she said, and Geoffrey knew what she meant. He helped her to mount, and then the little party cantered up the valley in the swiftly falling darkness.

Did ever bridal couple set out on a stranger honeymoon?

Chapter XVIII

THE AVALANCHE

"Whither are you making, sahib?" asked Sher Khan when Geoffrey first pulled up to a walk.

"At present I am working west. After a bit we must go north and cross the mountain-range to which Kailas belongs. It will not be a difficult crossing—there are passes everywhere—but they are very high. However, we will be able to ride. Then I want to cross the River Sutlej and make for the Indian frontier. It is no use trying for any particular pass. It will all depend on where we find ourselves. I don't think the 'Tiger' can have more than two hundred men at most, and he is sure to have sent many off in ones and twos as scouts. I fancy that he will keep his main body near the frontier so as to be certain of cutting us off. I know I would if I were in his place. If we can only avoid his scouts we will stand a very good chance. I doubt if any will risk an attack until they have collected almost overwhelming numbers. For the Glimpses At The New Collections.

REAL TUNICS ARE PLAIN

A GOOD instance of the way a tunic suggestion may be achieved without a tunic at all can be seen in a very wool frock with stand-up collar which opens slightly down the front.

This dress has a deep yoke down the middle of which are two or three buttons, and the yoke runs into slightly pointed epaulettes—almost as though the wearer had put a roof on her shoulders or some tiling.

Below the belt are a couple of V's made of tucks, and rather like pockets, which they are not. This brings down the bodice, as it were, into connection with the skirt.

There are also plain dresses, usually of wool, with a line at the waist and with perhaps a bateau neck. A tunic effect is contrived by a line or ribbon or openwork or other means, at the waist, a few inches below it and a few inches above.

There are also real tunics, all made plain and straight, which, however, have distinct decorative necessities.

Buttons also help with the decorative effect, and are sometimes used to head what might be pockets at the tunic line. Sometimes a shirt-front is let in, and it may extend below the waist-belt.

Study Your Face Contour

Correct Rouging Makes "Perfect Oval."

IT is agreed that the proper placing of your make-up and the choice of the correct rouge, powder and lipstick has a great deal to do toward bringing about a charming appearance.

Almost any face can be molded into "the perfect oval" if your rouge is placed correctly, and the nose should always be considered in the complete picture.

For example, if you have a short little nose and a round face, place your rouge high on the cheek bones—just beneath the eyes and close to the nose. You will discover that this seemingly gives your nose length.

A famous New York actress does this with amazing effect. She also puts a faint touch of pink to the lobes of her ears. This narrows the width of the face.

Glove-Sleeve For Evening.

THE glove-sleeve for evening is rather good. This is a bulky glove of thick velvet, which continues right over the elbow and half-way up to the shoulder.

GOAL BY MISS McCRAW GIVES SAINTS LEAD

Caer Clark Hockey

The "Y" Ladies provided a sensation in the Caer Clark Competition yesterday when they held the Hong Kong Ladies, unbeaten champions, to a draw, sharing two goals, in their match at King's Park.

The Hong Kong Ladies had the better part of the play throughout, but, though they pressed continuously, were unable to register the deciding goal.

Miss E. Bonnar placed the champions in the lead in the first half, but Miss P. McCraw, at centre-forward, equalised in the second half.

The Hong Kong Ladies attacked strongly, but were held in check by a very strong half-back, in which Miss E. Thomson was outstanding. Miss J. Weller was also very safe between the sticks.

Mrs. M. Reid did not play as was expected, and Miss V. Bradbury was seen on the right wing. Miss R. Smalley substituted for Mrs. B. Goldman on the left-wing for the Hong Kong Ladies.

"Y" Ladies:—J. Weller, Mrs. Portallion, A. Fowler, M. Gardiner, E. Thomson, B. Blumenthal, V. Bradbury, R. Blackmore, P. McCraw, T. Dennis and O. Brown.

H. K. Ladies:—M. Bird, E. M. Gray, B. Hebling, M. Wallace, B. Pope, Mrs. M. K. Lowe, E. Bell, J. Dalziel, B. Bonnar, J. Churchill and R. Smalley.

DECISIVE WIN OVER RECREIO "A"

The St. Andrew's Ladies hockey eleven secured the lead in the Caer Clark Cup Competition yesterday when they defeated the Recreio Ladies "A" eleven in a convincing manner by 4 goals to 1 on the Marina ground.

The Saints were seen at their best, and completely dominated the game in the first half when all four goals were scored.

Miss M. Woolley, the brilliant Colony's centre-forward, secured two of the four goals. Miss P. Gittins netted the third and Miss F. Wong registered the fourth goal after a fine solo effort on the right-wing.

The Recreio Ladies played a much better game in the second half when they often pressed dangerously. After forcing a series of corners they scored through Miss M. Roza.

The following were the teams. St. Andrew's Ladies:—Mrs. R. Rose, E. Lindolt, G. White, M. Churn, J. Wong, I. Woolley, F. Wong, I. Rogers, J. Woolley, L. Gittins and P. Gittins. Recreio Ladies "A":—B. The Central British Association Ladies recorded their second victory in the Caer Clark Competition by defeating the Recreio Ladies "B" eleven at King's Park yesterday by 2 goals to nil.

Miss E. Woolley, playing at centre-forward, netted both goals for the winners.

TWO GAMES FOR DIFFERENT CLUBS IN ONE DAY

Remarkable Rugby Performance By R.O.F. King

A rather unique record was established yesterday when the Hong Kong Club wing-forward, R. O. F. King, played two games of Rugby in the afternoon for two different Clubs. This incidentally was his fourth match in eight days during which he occupied five different positions on the field.

The Navy first fifteen being one short for their encounter with the Club at Sookunpo, King filled the vacancy, playing as full-back in the first half and wing-forward in the second. He had just finished playing in the preceding "A" game, when, as centre three-quarter for the Club, he scored a try and kicked a goal.

On the previous Saturday King played as wing three-quarter for the Club first team against the Combined Services, while on Wednesday he packed in the front row of the Club "A" fifteen against the H.M.S. Cumberland representatives.

CLUB WIN OVER NAVY BY A POINT

Lammert Scores Twice For Winners.

WEAKENED NAVY FIFTEEN

The Club first fifteen surprised the Navy yesterday at Sookunpo when they won by two tries (6 points) to a goal (5 points) after being led at the interval by five points.

The Navy were a very much depleted side, only six of their original team, namely Buckley, Forbes, Linton, Pascoe, Roome and Brown playing. They commenced the game with only fourteen men and R. O. F. King of the Club was brought into the team at full-back thereby allowing Buckley to fill the vacancy at right-wing three-quarter. King had previously played in the "A" match.

The Navy packed well in the opening half and got the ball nine times out of ten in the set scrums, but faulty handling behind the scrum spoiled many good movements.

In the second half the Club pack were the better of the two and heeled the ball more frequently. The Navy opened scoring after 10 minutes, a very fine three-quarter movement eventually seeing Buckley go over in a favourable position.

Navy Lead At Interval.

The Club retaliated strongly, but weak handling among the backs saw many openings go begging, the interval arriving with the Navy in the lead.

In the second half the Club backs handled better and as a result which Lammert opened Club's account near the corner flag, McLellan failing with the kick.

Soon after the Club were again over the Navy's goal line when Lammert again crossed in the corner, McLellan failing with a very fine kick.

The last minutes of the game were evenly contested, the Club holding the upper hand. Captain P. Gottwaltz of the Borderers refereed and lined up the following:

Club:—J. P. Whitham, J. J. Ferguson, W. H. B. Rigg, R. H. Griffiths and G. P. Lammert; M. W. Turner and H. C. Meeker; G. A. Stewart, R. C. Castle, E. F. Walker, Y. H. Bradford, D. A. Cumming, D. McLellan, G. C. Moutrie and W. E. Peters.

Navy:—King, Buckley, Finch-Noyes, St. Clair-Ford and Irving; Clark and Forbes; Linton, Pascoe, Roome, Masters, Corbett, Brown, Walsh and S. Brown.

Club "A" Overwhelm Navy Rivals.

WINNERS' SUPERIOR PACK

Playing at Sookunpo yesterday the Club "A" fifteen defeated the Navy "A" by two goals and four tries (22 points) to a goal (5 points) in a one-sided encounter.

The Club pack was much the superior and secured the ball from the tight throughout the first half, but in the second half the Navy improved and the Club were given a few anxious moments.

SOUTH CHINA GO NAP AGAINST NAVY

CLUB JUNIORS BEAT BORDERERS

BEATEN BY A SINGLE GOAL IN THEIR FIRST ENCOUNTER, KOWLOON VERY NEARLY PUT A SPOKE IN THE WHEEL OF THE SAINTS YESTERDAY. ONLY A LAST-MINUTE GOAL BY B. GOSANO ENABLING THE PREMIER LEAGUE SOCCER FAVORITES TO REGISTER TWO ESSENTIAL POINTS IN THE CHAMPIONSHIP RACE.

THE LINCOLNS RETAINED THE LEADERSHIP WITH A 7 TO 1 WIN OVER THE CLUB. REVENGE MUST HAVE BEEN SWEET—THEY WERE ELIMINATED BY THE CLUB IN THE SENIOR SHIELD LAST SATURDAY.

South China recorded an expected triumph over the weakened Navy side, but the Club's win over the Borderers in the Junior Shield replay was in the nature of a sensation and very much against the run of the play. The conversion of a penalty by Duncan sealed the fate of the military side.

Yet another programme was marred by the sending off of a player, Scott, of the Artillery, being given marching orders. Despite their handicap the Gunners beat the Young Indians by 5 goals to 1.

There was only one serious injury during the afternoon, Kwok Ying-wing, of the Athletic, being sent to hospital suffering from a broken rib. Holding their Naval rivals up to the time of the accident the Athletic collapsed to lose by 5 goals to 1.

South China Go Nap Against Navy.

FUNG'S SECOND GOAL CAUSES COLLAPSE.

Well Merited Win.

South China, the holders, entered the Semi-Final Round of the Senior Shield at the expense of the Navy in no uncertain manner at Caroline Hill, winning by five clear goals.

The Navy had a very narrow escape from the kick-off, Yeung Shui-yick cutting in to go very close. Within two minutes South China had taken the lead, Yeung crossing for Tam to head back to Pau, who scored with a first-time drive.

From that point, however, the Navy dominated the game. Skinner ran clear and Barnett was just wide from the centre. Skinner then gave Barnett another great chance, but the inside-right shot over. Fairless had a great shot saved by Wong and a free-kick just outside the penalty area was luckily cleared. It seemed just a matter of time before the Chinese goal must fall. Wong caused anxiety when he dropped the ball from a long shot, but none of the Navy forwards could tap the ball in the empty net through over eagerness.

A long clearance brought the South China forwards in evidence again, and Woodman made a good, if lucky, clearance from Yeung.

The Navy were soon back to the attack again, and Ellsworth ran through, but from a good position he shot over.

Then came a furious onslaught on the Chinese goal. Skinner shot across the ball after a smart recovery. Li cleared off the line with Wong hopelessly beaten; and amid great excitement a goal-scoring shot from Tong struck a defender who was on the ground in the goal-mouth.

Two minutes after the interval the Navy had conceded another goal, toying around with the ball in front of goal gave Tam a chance to run in and pass to Fung whose shot passed between Woodman's legs.

After this disaster the Navy went to pieces and the Chinese were practically allowed to do as they pleased. Woodman made a good save from Yeung, and Fung shot across the goal with the Navy defence spreadeagled. A glorious header from Tay was only just gathered and then Ward passed the ball to Tam in the goalmouth for the South China player to head past Woodman.

A couple of minutes later Woodman misjudged a long shot from the wing, fell back into the net and pushed the ball out to Tam, who scored easily.

The Chinese were now complete masters, the few Navy at-

Borderers Unfortunate Against Club.

PENALTY DECIDES GAME.

The Borderers were extremely unlucky yesterday at the Valley when they lost to the Club in the replay of the Second Round Shield game by the only goal scored from a penalty.

From the commencement of play the Borderers proved to be the best team; they were faster and more sure in all departments than were the Club players. The Borderers forwards were good, combining very well, particularly during the first half.

The ball was first "netted" by Morris, the Borderers' inside left. Purcell sent in a hard shot, which hit the crossbar, and Morris caught it on the rebound to place it well beyond Fowler's reach, but the goal was disallowed as Morris was ruled by the referee to be off-side.

The only goal was a most unsatisfactory one. Williams, the Borderers' left half, was penalised for handling, and Duncan took the kick and made no mistake. This goal, against the run of play, proved the decider and gave the Club entry into the next round.

The Borderers fought hard to avoid defeat, and in the last five minutes a succession of shots were fired in at the Club goal.

The Club were out-played by a younger and faster team, and perhaps deserved their win for their stamina, but, on the run of play, the Borderers were very unlucky in not running out victors.

Club:—Farrow, Low, Raitton, McKeller, Boyd, Gamble, Tamblin, Bell, Duncan, Watson and Sloan.

Borderers:—Williams, Jenkins, Herbert, Roberts, Court, Williams, John, Pallister, Purcell, Morris and Searle.

tacks being easily repulsed by Li and Lau, and Pau nearly added another when his shot struck the upright after good play by Fung.

Wong made a couple of good clearances from Skinner and at the other end Leung's shot hit the crossbar. Defensive errors were plentiful, and near the end Pau scored the fifth Chinese goal with a hard drive.

South China:—Wong Wing, Li Tinsang, Lau Mau, Li Kwok-wai, Leung Wing-chui, Tong Kwai, Yeung Shui-yick, Fung King-cheung, Pau Ka-ping, Tam Kong-pak and Tay Quee-lung.

Navy:—Woodman, Ward, Edmunds, Dovey, Blair, Kefford, Fairless, Barnett, Ellsworth, Tong and Skinner.

TO-DAY'S PREMIER LEAGUE GAMES

The Borderers are expected to continue their soccer revival at the expense of the East Lanes in the premier league this afternoon, while the Athletic are expected to beat the Recreio in Kowloon.

LOSERS SCORE FIRST

In a hard game at the Valley yesterday the Navy Lower Deck defeated the Incognitos by the odd goal in five in a friendly hockey encounter. No goals were scored in the first half, but ten minutes after the resumption PINTO gave the Incognitos the lead. International Confidence.

DESPITE fears arising from unwonted experiments, revival of industry and trade, and with it decrease of unemployment, are reported from many countries to-day. Most noticeable are the conditions of the British Empire, and if Canada lags somewhat behind, it is because she is still bound more closely economically to the United States than she is to her sister nations, and may never be able wholly to free herself from her neighbour's influence. Depression first arose, and then was intensified to a degree of which history furnishes no parallel, through fear, the fear that debtors would not be able to meet their commitments. Therefore creditors feared for their principal rather than their interest. Beginning with the United States debacle in the second half of 1929, a paralysis of enterprise set in, and running concurrently with the fear felt by some consuming countries of an attempt at food domination by producing countries through pools, brought down with a crash the values of primary products. The ability of the debtor to meet his commitments was made the more precarious. Confidence left Central Europe. As Britain was known to have supported heavily that part of the world, the creditors who, because of their fears elsewhere, had entrusted their fugitive capital to her charge brought about another flight back to France, Holland, Switzerland, and the United States, and some to the vaults of safe deposit. So was forced the departure of Great Britain from the gold standard in September, 1931.

As the world's largest holder of gold stocks, America cannot be said to have been forced off the gold standard, even although the country's internal economic condition would probably have made the move inevitable. The step was taken in order to allow President Roosevelt to inaugurate his various Recovery schemes, an essential factor in which was an inflated currency. His astounding "experiments," mostly the inventions of his professional advisers, have caused world-wide confusion — and, it is strongly suspected, have even bewildered Washington. Under the powers he will secure by the passage of the Gold Bill now before the Senate, Mr. Roosevelt is to invade the international exchange markets more vigorously and the threat exists of a serious currency "war" with Britain. American policy is still too vague and uncertain to permit an accurate estimate of the extent of the success of the great Recovery Plan but that considerable progress has been accomplished is undeniable. A great measure of confidence has been restored, prices have been raised, the banking structure has been strengthened, and an encouraging impetus has been given to industry. Reverses are bound to occur, but, as Mr. Roosevelt daily grows more conservative in his methods, the danger of a collapse of grave magnitude becomes more remote. It is interesting to note, nevertheless, the more real and lasting recovery that has taken place in Britain despite the deliberate avoidance of any spectacular or unorthodox measures. There has been no departure from traditional, sound procedure, yet Britain appears likely to the first nation to emerge from the shadows of the economic depression.

Britain, then, furnishes an example of confidence whose extension to other parts of the world economic polity and above all to international politics, is essential to render widespread the recovery which has set in. If the world could know what the policy of the United States is, and that the United States will stick to it, then the world would have confidence in its future business dealings with that country instead of fear of the consequences. If industry and business could have confidence that the nations would not war with each other, that the products of industry in finding markets would not be hampered or prevented by military force, that their assets in producing would meet no more than the risks of peaceful trade, if international trade were permitted a freer course, a great part of the immense body of floating capital, which is such a menace to the money markets of the world as it flies hither and thither seeking safety, would be employed in the permanent investment of production. The depression has shown us not that capital has failed, but that burdens have been placed on capital which are quite foreign to the system. Food is not yet produced in too great quantities for consumption, or clothing in too great quantities for use. Restoration of international confidence will give capital freedom to lubricate the ways of industry and trade, and provide for a consumption which will take up production.

He was arrested while attempting to pawn the ring at the Yuen Hung Pawn Shop, Des Vaux Road Central, for $50 on January 20, and was remanded until the arrival of the President Coolidge.

HONG KONG AND THE NEW TERRITORIES. — No. 89.

The Chinese Tiger-cat.

This Tiger-cat was first described by Gray in 1837 as Felis chinensis but it has been decided that it is definitely a sub-species of the small spotted tiger-cat of India and Burma and it is therefore named Felis bengalensis chinensis, the Chinese small spotted Tiger-cat. It was mentioned in this column last week that this is the common wild-cat of the Colony—there may be other species but we have not seen them.

I have three published descriptions of this cat and also the one referred to last week; the abbreviated description which follows has been checked by the skin. The animal is about the size of a domestic cat from which it can at once be distinguished by the pale or white spot on the middle third of the back of the ear and by the absence of a dark tip to the tail. Length of head and body about 26 inches, length of tail 12 inches. General colour pale yellowish grey, interrupted by a multitude of more or less dark spots. Two narrow, elongated white marks commence beside the nose and extend on to the forehead, and another, on each cheek, extends back on the neck beyond the angle of the jaw, with a deep red-brown border above and below. Muzzle (spotted with black), lower parts of cheeks and chin white, except part of the upper lip, which is yellow and striped. Fine, blackish stripes on the head, all but the middle one extending to the beginning of the back. Ear pale in front, black behind with a white spot. Chest whitish, with reddish-brown spots, which tend to form transverse bands like a series of incomplete collars. The spots form elongated markings along the back and sides; sometimes the spots of the sides form leopard-like rosettes, but sometimes they do not do so. This cat is sometimes called the Leopard-cat. Fur short and somewhat soft, tail with longer and woollier hair than the body more dully coloured and with large spots of dingy brown.

A Sea-Snake Record.
Sea-snakes normally occur in local waters only during the warmer summer months when occasional specimens are seen at Repulse Bay or other bathing resorts. The kind most frequently seen is a black and yellow banded species Hydrophis cyanocinctus, which can easily be distinguished as a sea-snake by its laterally compressed tail which enables it to swim gracefully and with ease. Last week a living specimen of another species was found on the beach at Tweed Bay on Stanley Peninsula. This, instead of being banded black and yellow, is black on top and yellow below and on the sides; the tail is yellow spotted with black. This species, the Yellow-bellied sea-snake, Pelamis platurus, is probably the most widespread of all the sea-snakes, though I have had specimens from fishermen this is the first to have been collected on Hong Kong Island and given to me. All sea-snakes are poisonous, some are deadly; it is most unusual to find one in the Colony in January.

Rare Winter Visitors.
For some reason not fully understood a few birds, which should migrate south to the Philippines to Indo China before winter commences, remain here for the whole winter. It may be that the wooded hillsides afford food and cover sufficiently attractive to a bird on its way south from Kwangtung to the Philippines to cause it to check its migration flight. Whatever may be the reason birds are seen in Hong Kong in January which have no business to be here. Last winter a Golden Oriole was seen on three or more occasions in the University Compound and in the Botanic Gardens; this winter, also, in the first week of the year, a male in full plumage was observed in the University Compound.

On January 2nd an Ashy Drongo was identified in the Botanic Gardens and on the 24th two black Drongos were seen on the same tree that had attracted their grey cousin. These black Drongos may have been either the Chinese Hair-crested Drongo or, probably, the Chinese Black Drongo. Whichever they were the record is of interest. In 1908 an Ashy Drongo was recorded as having been seen in the vicinity of the Naval Hospital and Happy Valley from mid-Feb. to mid-April. In 1930 one was seen in the Botanic Gardens from mid-February to mid-March; on Jan. 6th 1932 one was seen in the Gardens, it was still there on April 6th. On Jan. 3rd 1933 one bird was again seen in the Gardens and now a record for 1934! These are all the Hong Kong records of this rare bird and it certainly seems highly probable that the records from 1930 to this year are of one and the same bird. The Drongos are related to the Flycatchers and to the Shrikes, they can be recognised by their forked tail frequently lyre-shaped. Ornithologists should visit the Botanic Gardens and take the opportunity of seeing this rare visitor.

SHOT CHILD FOR DEER

Dying Man Reveals
Grim Tragedy.

35-YEAR-OLD INCIDENT

Bolzano, Italy.
The mysterious disappearance of a little boy 35 years ago from the village of Burgus, near the Swiss frontier, has at last been cleared up by the death-bed confession of an old sportsman.

As he lay dying the sportsman called his lawyer and confessed to him that one autumn day in 1898 he had been out shooting deer with two friends near the village.

They spotted a roe-buck and started to stalk it when one of the party saw something move in the bushes and fired. To his horror a small boy fell out shot dead.

The child had been crawling through the bushes and the firer who was rather short-sighted, had thought that he was a roe-buck.

Terrified at what had happened, the three sportsmen decided to sink the little body in a deep pond near by and say nothing about the tragedy.

However, as a slave to their conscience, they agreed that the last of the trio to survive should confess to the authorities the truth about the child's disappearance before he died.—Reuter.

NATIONS DISCUSS MONUMENTS.

Roerich Pact Delegates
Meet At Washington.

Washington.
The third International Convention of the Roerich Pact and Banner of Peace which is being held here, is attended by representatives of Argentina, Chile, China, Colombia, Ecuador, Japan, Irish Free State, Poland, Spain, Switzerland and the United States.

The Roerich Pact was created by Nicholas Roerich, the Russo-American artist and writer, in 1929. It provides that educational, artistic and scientific institutions, missions and monuments be respected in times of peace and war. To ensure over such buildings and monuments this banner was designed to fly over such buildings and monuments in the hope that the nations would agree to respect them in time of war.—Reuter.

Paragraph (b) of section 3 (3) of the 1890 Enactment, which provided that offenders should be liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for any term not exceeding four months, or to a fine not exceeding $100, and in the case of a second or subsequent conviction to imprisonment for any term not exceeding six months, or to a fine not exceeding $250, is now to be repealed and the following substituted therefor:—

(b) on summary conviction, to imprisonment for any term not exceeding six months, or to a fine not exceeding $1,000, the Hong Kong General Chamber of Commerce having asked that the maximum fine on summary conviction should be increased.

Section 11 (2) of the principal Ordinance, founded on section 12 (2) of the Merchandise Marks Act, 1887, provides for informations or complaints laid or made for the purpose of enforcing forfeiture in cases where the owner of goods or things, which would be liable to forfeiture on his conviction, is unknown or cannot be found.

Cases arise in which the owner is known, but is outside the jurisdiction of the courts. In order to remove doubts and to implement an undertaking given to the Hong Kong General Chamber of Commerce in 1917 that the point would be dealt with at the next amendment of the Ordinance, section 3 of this Ordinance adds the words "in the Colony" after the words "cannot be found."

ACCUSED FOUND TO BE INSANE.Charge Of Attempted Arson Withdrawn.

At the Central Police Court yesterday morning before Mr. E. W. Hamilton, Detective Inspector Fender applied for the withdrawal of a charge of attempted arson against Lam Tak, an unemployed Chinese, on the ground that the defendant had been medically examined and found to be insane.

Defendant was arrested while attempting to set fire to the Chik Lee painters' shop at Chung Ching Street on the evening of January 11. He was taken to the West Point Police Station, where his behaviour raised doubts of his sanity. The Magistrate subsequently ordered him to be medically examined. The withdrawal of the charge was granted.

Environment's Effect On MankindParental Care That Moulds The Child*LESSONS FROM CHRIST'S BOYHOOD*(By A Local Padre.)

(This is another of the series of articles written exclusively for the "Sunday Herald" by a local Army chaplain.)

IN the first of this short series of articles last week, based on Paterson Smythe's book, dealing with the hidden years of our Lord's life, in the Nazareth workshop, we got a picture of that home, where He was growing up as a natural human boy, in a natural human family.

He came to earth with no special knowledge. He had to learn even the facts of His religion as any other child, and His first lessons would come from His Mother. That is God's great gift to Mothers all the world over, although with the Jews, it is with the Father that the responsibility rested.

When the day was over, and bedtime came, we can picture the Mother teaching Him His infant prayers, telling Him of the Father, and His love for little children, with the thought of the destiny awaiting Him ever before her mind. Happy the Mother and happy the child who pray together to the God of little children in the tender years of their lives. Time and time again in later years we realize what we owe to the religion we were taught at our Mother's knee. The Mother who neglects that responsibility, is only failing in her sacred duty, but losing one of the greatest chances of moulding that child's character for the after-years. Later on education passes into other hands, to people whose job it is to teach, and the individual touch, and personal care is gone. Half of the trouble to-day is that children are being allowed to grow up like barbarians, with no religious teaching that would warm their hearts, and stir their imaginations.

The care and love of a Chinese amah for the English baby in her charge is sometimes remarkable, and Mothers are inclined to leave their children to them in a far greater degree than they would at home, but surely it is not asking too much, to suggest that they make a point of finding time to give them some grounding on the things that really matter. It may make all the difference in later life.

Jew's Religious Training.
The Jews were especially careful about the religious training of their children. Directly a child began to speak his training began. He learned his creed, for hymns he had the simpler psalms, for history the story of God's dealing with His people. Even before he learned anything, he could not toddle through the door without seeing the sacred words nailed to the doorpost—the sign of the Divine guard over the homes of Israel. Everything around was teaching him religion—the Sabbath meal, the Sabbath lamp, the annual celebrations, the Feast of Weeks, the Day of Atonement, the Passover, for which the men of the village left for Jerusalem every year.

When He was six years old He would go to the Synagogue School of the town, to be taught by the country Rabbi. School was very important to the Jews. It was forbidden to live where there was no school.

So we can picture a little Boy going to school with His brothers and sisters sitting in a semi-circle on the floor, learning from His teacher the Word of God.

Longfellow in The Golden Legend pictures the scene:

"Come hither Judas Iscariot
See if the lesson thou hast got
From the Rabbinical Book, or not
And now little Jesus, the Carpenter's son
Let us see how thy work is done."

When He could read, probably the only books to which He had access were the books of the Old Testament. But to Him we know that all God's world would be sacred and full of meaning. Besides the written word, there lay all around Him the great book of Nature, through which the Father was always speaking to Him.

Lessons From Nature.
When school was over, He used to wander over the hillsides, seeing God's green fields and laughing streams, the sun sinking in crimson glory over the waters of the Great Sea, the flowers and birds—and delighting in them all, and being stirred to believe that the Father delighted in them too.

In all His references to Nature in later years, He made us feel that God was behind it all, that He loved the little lambs sporting in the fields, that He watched the poor sheep going astray, that He feeds the birds of the air, who toll neither do they spin, that He sees the sparrows falling out of their nests, clothes the grass of the field, and decks the wild flowers of the hill-side so that Solomon in all his glory was not to be compared with them. When the Nazareth farmer sowed his wheat into the ground, He saw that the life which springs up comes from God, first the blade, then the ear, then the full corn in the ear.

Slum Clearance Needed.
Did any other boy on earth ever enjoy nature and love it and see God in it as the Boy of Nazareth? And then think of what it would mean if all children could be brought up in the same way. If the children who are born and bred in the slums of our great cities, who grow old in sin, before they are out of their teens, whose environment is bounded by drab streets, crowded together in grim tenements, never seeing the clean light of the sun, could be transported to where they could see God striking in the world of nature, to watch the unfolding of a flower, to feel that the hurrying of a little bird, or the tramping on a bed of roses was taking the name of the Lord our God in vain, what a difference it would make.

The housing of men and women in this world means as much to God as their home in the next, and it is one of the achievements of this generation that we are waking up to this fact, and if the National Government of Great Britain can accomplish the scheme of clearing the slums, as they propose, they will leave behind them an imperishable memorial.

Think what a joyous natural thing a child's religion could be made, with the thought of a kindly loving Father so near to him always. Surely Jesus was a happy child in that free simple boyhood of His in Nazareth, before the consciousness of the world's pain and sin began to press hard upon His heart.

DEAD BODY FOUND IN HARBOUR.Thought To Be A Case Of Suicide.

With a deep cut across the throat, and his clothing blood-stained in several places, the body of an unknown Chinese was discovered in the harbour yesterday off Butterfield and Swire's pier at Causeway Bay.

The dead man had apparently been blind in one eye.

The police consider it to be a case of suicide rather than of murder.

SMALLPOX CASE IN YAUMATI.Dead Body Thrown Into Street.

The first case of smallpox to be reported this winter was discovered in Park Street, Yaumati, when the body of an unknown Chinese was picked up in the roadway, near house No. 1.

The body was taken to the Kowloon Public Mortuary.

French And British Under One Flag

The Two Peoples In Canada

Sturdy French Element Is "Fiercely National"

By JULIAN DUGUID
Author of "Green Hell"

CANADA is the one country in the world where English and French communities are grouped under the same flag. It is an experiment of Empire which may be examined by strangers with only the gentlest of gloved hands. For issue is still hotly argued: still uncertain as to its end.

There is no doubt that the partnership is uneasy. It is, in no sense, a fusion. Both elements are suspicious and on their dignity, eager to resent encroachment. So much so, indeed, that the Press finds it convenient to ignore the diversity altogether.

As a matter of fact, there is no Canadian question on which it is harder to get unbiased judgment. English and French are antipathetic because they do not know each other; because at no period of their lives do they really mix. They go to different schools. They have different ideas of God. In Montreal they tend to live at opposite corners of the city. They have separate tennis clubs and dances, for recreations of this sort are apt to end in marriage. And then the children must be Catholic. In sober truth they are almost different nations.

Why Ontario Fears Quebec

Wherefore it behaves an inquirer to ask questions on either side of the River Ottawa and try to blend the result. It is not easy. Let us take the English viewpoint first.

Ontario is frightened of Quebec. She is frightened in much the same way that Vancouver used to be nervous of the Japanese. She is afraid of penetration by a people with a lower standard of living, a large birth-rate, and a highly organised Church which has a reputation for directing politics. Vancouver blocked the inflow from Japan.

At the present moment there are 650,000 French-Canadians outside the Province of Quebec. This figure comes within a few thousand of the entire population of British Columbia. They are mostly of the simple type, farmers, miners, trappers, living together in little wooden houses near a church whose magnificence seems more than the village can afford. Ontario asserts that the priest deliberately impoverishes his flock, mortgaging their earnings for generations that the Church may grow fat. The French-Canadian has his answer to this charge.

With these matters in mind I sought a friendly Senator in the Parliament Buildings at Ottawa.

A Fighting Wedge
"As you are certainly aware," he said, "our House of Commons has 245 members. Of these 82 represent Ontario, 65 Quebec; while the other seven provinces have 98 between them. It will be obvious that a fighting wedge, like Quebec, which always votes consistently, must be kept in a good temper. Lately there have been five or six French-Canadians returned from constituencies outside Quebec. The likelihood that these will increase is a serious problem to us."

Here I mentioned a remark which an English statesman (he is fully big enough for the word) made to me before I went to Canada.

"Quebec is loyal," he had said. I regret to say that my Senator grunted.

"Loyal to whom? Not to England or the Empire, except in so far as they stand against the States. There was almost a revolution over conscription in the War. She is loyal to Canada; I will say that. She would vote to a man against reciprocity. If necessary she would take up arms against inclusion. Perhaps it would be truer to call her national. Yes, fiercely national."

But she minds her own business," he added fairly. "Provided nobody touches her she is not aggressive." I pondered these words through all the months I was wandering in Canada. On my return to Montreal I spoke with a liberal-minded French-Canadian.

"We are both right and both different," he said. "Wasn't that the Greek idea of tragedy? Our Church holds certain rigid views. On birth-control. On the sanctity of the home. On the ease with which God is excluded by the gambling spirit inherent in Big Business. On the ultimate happiness of mankind resting on simple things: the farm; the village life; the small courtesies."

"The Church recognises what Democracy does not: that most people are not suited to command; that freedom of competition often destroys one's peace of mind. Think, my friend, what does one mean when one speaks of civilisation? Hot and cold water in the bed-room, is it not? Material things."

Here, then, is the root of the divergence, the gulf between Ontario and Quebec. Broadly speaking they are living in different centuries. While Ontario has many large towns with chain-stores and a quick-fire outlook on business, Quebec has not. This does not mean, of course, that Montreal is backward. It is probably the most modern city in Canada. But the exploitation on the grand scale has not, with few exceptions, been the work of French-Canadians. It has been the work of Americans.

Big Business Shunned

Quebec, the real French Quebec outside Montreal, prefers to go slow. The habitant has his farm, his wife and children (so many children), and above all his church. He has a good suit of clothes for Sundays and saints days, and enough money from his crops to enjoy himself in a small way. He is not, in any sense, ambitious. His more adventurous sons make marvellous trappers, woodmen and explorers. Indeed, Quebec will tell you that the credit for the big discoveries of seventy years ago should not belong to Alexander Mackenzie and Simon Fraser, who merely sat in canoes, but to the

WISE & OTHERWISE

Shirker

In the States there is a precarious profession called "fly-walking," members of which scale the face of a skyscraper and descend by parachute to send round the hat.

One of these fly-walkers was giving a performance when he discovered that he was being followed by a lunatic.

"Turn back," said the acrobat. "Not darn likely," said the other.

The climber reached the top of the building and unstrapped his parachute. He was gliding gracefully down to the ground when he was passed by the parachuteless lunatic.

"Yah...coward," sneered the other.

TIT FOR TAT

The bus conductor had not noticed the hole in the three-penny-bit until he had gone well down the bus. After he had finished collecting he returned to the culprit.

"Here, guv'nor," he said thrusting the coin before the man. "What's this?"

"What's what?" asked the fare calmly.

"This 'ere three-penny-bit," said the conductor. "Look, it's got a 'ole in it."

"Well, what about it?" said the other. "So has the ticket you gave me."

HIS PROTECTOR

A little boy came flying round the corner of the street and pulled up beside a policeman.

"What's all this 'bout?" asked the constable gruffly.

"I say," said the boy, "if you saw a little boy getting hurt, would you interfere?"

The policeman looked very important.

"Of course, my lad," he said quickly.

"Well, will you come along with didn't you tell me I was hitting a me, please?" said the boy. "Dad is waiting for me at the front door with a stick."

"How'd you come to lose the fight, Jack?"

"Never gave a man a chance; declared the other bloke the winner while I was unconscious."

Millions of Gallons maturing— Older and better than ever

Never was your White Horse as good or as old as it is to-day. Years ago, exceptionally heavy stocks of the finest whiskies were laid down to meet the needs which the quality would justify. These stocks are now fully matured. The result is that WHITE HORSE is now older and better than ever before, excellent as it was in 1932 and preceding years. This advance in quality and age will be maintained. White Horse is now the equivalent of a fine liqueur.

EXHIBITION OF OLD KIMONOS AND OBIS.

Ancient Japanese
Colour-Prints.

AT KOMOR AND KOMOR'S
GALLERIES

On Thursday next, February 1, a unique exhibition will be opened at Messrs. Komor and Komor's Art Rooms, when Mr. T. Okamoto's collection of old Court kimonos and brocade obis and ancient Japanese colour-prints will be on view.

It is very rare to-day, even in Japan, to find the old brocade obis and ceremonial kimonos. The people of Japan have always had a passion for sumptuous robes, and the textile art has been for centuries one of the most glorious industries of the country.

Much of the quaint elegance of the Japanese women must be ascribed to the beauty of their robes. The greatest artists of Japan took pride in designing the patterns of silks and brocades for the Court and the nobility.

Japanese colour-prints, too, of which the British Museum has the finest collection in the world, are becoming very rare, and it is a great chance to be able to see a collection such as Mr. Okamoto is placing on exhibition.

The collection covers all periods
and includes works by Hokusai, Toyokuni, Gakutei, Elsan, Kumi-soda and Hiroshige, which are unobtainable elsewhere to-day.

Japanese colour-prints were produced by hand pressure. The printer was an artist rather than an artisan, mixing and spreading his colours on the blocks and tinting his sheets by the delicate, dexterous use of his ten fingers only.

Messrs. Komor and Komor, coincidentally with the opening of the exhibition, are beginning a half-price sale in order to clear their stocks of lacquer, Satsuma ware, porcelain and curios.

French guides who did the portag-

This attitude of refusing to be amused in Big Business has certainly been justified of late years.
During the slump there has been less suffering among French-Canadians than among any other.
They had less far to fall.

Quebec, too, is the last province to incur a deficit. While British Columbia wallows in a financial mire, Quebec, until this year, rode free. It is a fact which should be remembered by the rampant army of Canada's politicians.

All this, of course, does not relieve Ontario of anxiety. The French-Canadian is spreading, and he takes with him his views. I have seen these settlements with silver spires all the way from Ottawa to Edmonton, Alberta, the gateway to the North. With their huge birth-rate they may well cut heavily into the English vote within two or three generations.

Nevertheless, nature and movements seldom march in a straight line. The unexpected crops up, and the danger leaps sideways. I present the following incident as a possible solution.

Influence of Wireless.
We were steaming up the St.
Lawrence. On the northern banks the high, grey cliffs dipped steeply to the water. Every four or five miles was a settlement, each village cut off from the next except by

I wonder. Is wireless to prove in Quebec the stumbling-block which the Catholic Church has encountered sooner or later in every country?

It will be interesting to see the habitant twenty years from now.

Meanwhile, Ontario is nervous.

Lincolns Swamp The Club.

SHIELD DEFEAT AVENGED SATISFACTORILY

Early Goal by Higgins

The Lincolns had it all their own way at the Valley yesterday when they trounced the Club by 7 goals to 1, avenging very satisfactorily their defeat by the same team last week in the Senior Shield.

The Lincolns' forward line was on top form. Higgins, the centre-forward, playing extremely well.
The Ridley-Hocquard combination was good. Ridley playing with his usual artistry—his passes to Hocquard were perfect. Cork, at centre-half, played well and did much to enable the team to record such a decisive win. Deacon, in goal, was not often tested, but he saved
some good shots.

The Club forwards were not up to standard. Their attempts at scoring were misjudged, all the shots going wide or over the top.
Skinner, the Club centre-half, struggled desperately hard to keep the team together, but it was an unavailing effort. S. Strange, at left-back for the Club, played a good game, but it was not the Stranger-Hocquard combination by any means.

The first goal was scored by Higgins in the first two minutes of the game. The Lincolns forwards rushed through from the kick-off and just a yard from the goalmouth Ridley passed to Higgins who sent the ball into the net. Ridley was well placed, and could have just as easily have scored himself.

From the centre the Lincolns again ran through, Ridley hitting the crossbar. Higgins met the ball from the rebound only to hit the bar again, and meeting the ball once again from the rebound he sent the ball over the top. The soldiers continued to attack, but there was no further score in the first half.

The Lincolns were very aggreslive at the commencement of the second half, scoring three goals in as many minutes from the start.

The first was the result of a brilliant run through by Baldry, who cut in from the wing to score a fine goal. McGuinness added the next two goals, from passes from Baldry.

The Club made a slight change in the formation of the team at this stage, Fowler and Hill on the right wing, being transposed.

Although this change made little difference to the right wing the Club seemed to liven up, and E.
Strange scored their solitary goal when he sent in a shot from the wing which completely beat Deacon.
The Lincolns then took play back into the Club's area and in a scramble the Club were penalised for handling. Cork took the kick and made no mistake.

Ridley scored the sixth goal just on time, and Higgins flashed in a seventh just before the final whistle.

Club:—Rodger; Hynes and S.
Strange; Donlin, Skinner and Duncan; Rodger, Hill, Howe, E. Strange and Bickford.
Lincolns:—Deacon; Steams and Ed-
minson; Dudley, Cork and Bett; Baldry, McGuinness, Higgins, Ridley
and Hocquard.

SECOND DIVISION.

Athletic Player Is Badly Injured.

Although fielding practically a new team, the Navy easily accounted for Chinese Athletic at Happy Valley by the 5 goals to 1.
An unfortunate accident marred the game when Kwok Ying-wing, who had been the outstanding player for the Athletic, fell over Chappell in a scramble, and as a result he is believed to have broken a rib, leaving the field in great pain. He was taken to hospital.
Up to that point the game had been fairly even, although the Navy had missed many chances of scoring, their forwards not shooting often enough.

Starting with only ten players
the Athletic were soon a goal down.
Chappell-tricking four players before closing in to score a grand goal.

A minute later the Athletic equalised, a nice move ending in Kwok Ying-wing cutting in to score with a hard drive. The Navy then had most of the play.

After 30 minutes Kwok had to leave the field, and from then onwards the Athletic were on the defensive.

From the restart, McNeil and Glass worked through for the former to give his side the lead with a good goal. Later Glass ran through and scored again, and the same player made the score 4-1 when Potts gave him a good opening. Potts scored the final point after a goalmouth melee in the closing minutes.

Athletic:—Lee Hoi-chun; Cheong Ippai, Chan Sui-chuen; Li Chun-choi, Lau So, Chan Sui-man; Chow Yun-cheung, Ip Yun-poi, Pang Kam-hung, Chan Cheung-yim and Kwok Ying-wing.

Navy:—Leach; Guy, Grant; White,
West, Burdon; Chappell, Potts, Glass,
McNeil and Sargent.

Artillery Win With Ten Men.

At the Valley the Artillery gained a decisive victory over the Young Indians, emerging winners from the encounter by 5 goals to 1.

Another regrettable incident occurred when in the second half Scott, of the Artillery, was given marching orders for an alleged deliberate foul on an opponent.

HARDY opened the Gunners' account with a well-placed shot which gave Ahmed no chance. The Young Indians should have equalised shortly after, but Arcull missed when in a good position. Another Artillery attack resulted in HOP-KINS netting with a neat shot.

Shortly before the interval, a particularly fine movement by the Young Indians led up YSUFF reducing the lead. There was no further score by the Young Indians, but the Artillery added three more, despite the handicap of playing with only ten men. HOPKINS scored two more to complete his
"hat-trick" while McDONALD deceived Ahmed with a long dropping shot.

Artillery:—Woods; Lowen, Price;
McDonald, Hunt, Scott; Edmunds,
Smith, Hopkins, Hardy and Sell.
Young Indians:—Ahmed; Rahman,
Omar; Razack, Baker, Markar, Yau, Moosa, Hamot, Azim and Arcull.

Club "A" Overwhelm Navy Rivals.

The Club opened the scoring through Burch who scored a second try soon after. Both were uncon-verted. Munro then went over from a scrum-down on the Navy's five-yard mark, but he failed to convert.

A fine passing bout saw the Navy press determinedly and a late attempt to kick by Jenkins saw Dum-bleton score, the try being converted.

In the second half the Club held the upperhand, Wheeler adding to the score with an unconverted try.
Then King was responsible for the best try of the game. A dash fully threequarters the length of the field and a return pass from Harbord saw King score, brilliantly,
and convert his effort.

Just before time the Club went further ahead when Hutchison hurled himself over for Munro to convert with a splendid kick.

THE TIGER OF TIBET

time being their job will be to keep in touch with us and gradually ring us round. But really we ought to elude them, with any luck, with the greater part of Western Tibet in front of us."

The next ten days seemed like one protracted nightmare. All-night rides across the barren uplands; day-long periods of anxious suspense, punctuated by snatches of sleep; the perpetual diet of roast pigeon and cold water—usually melted snow—varied on one great occasion when Jogaroo managed to knock over a blue Tibetan hare which scuttled away from under his feet; the frustrated attempt at crossing the Kallas Range when a band of the enemy discovered them and suddenly opened fire; the wild gallop north once more in the darkness; the successful passage of the range by a pass of over nineteen thousand feet on which the snow still lay in great white sheets—luckily the gradients were so easy that it was possible to ride all the way, but even the sturdy little Rudok ponies showed signs of great distress; the drop down into the canyon of the Sutlej, when every nook and every hollow was a probable hiding-place for a lurking foe.

The crossing of the river was in itself a real adventure. They did not dare to use one of the regular bridges, and had to risk a ford. For a whole day they waited in a large cave in the foot of cliffs which form the sides of the canyon. They watched the waters rise as the sun melted the feeders, icebound by the previous night's frost. Then as the shadows lengthened once more the tide began to slacken, until at midnight the river had fallen several feet. They held their feet high as their ponies boldly waded through the turgid current, and, dismounting on the southern bank, rubbed the brave beasts' legs to try and save them from the awful cold. Then up, up through a maze of cliffs and ravines until the tilted levels were gained once more.

They skirted the towns of Dongpu and Daba, and were heading for the Niti Pass and safety when a body of some twenty mounted men suddenly appeared from a low range of hills known to an older generation of sportsmen as the "Lal Pahar" (Red Hills), so called on account of their deep-red colour. The moor did not rise now until later, and they continued their march in the early morning, but on this occasion were very nearly caught. As it was, a handy ravine hid them in the nick of time, and following its course they rode north-west away from the enemy, but away from the pass as well.

On, on they trekked past the old Tibetan gold-works, near Dogkwa Aur and past the encamping ground of Gandok, where they were again discovered by a band of mounted Tibetans, who pursued them at a mad gallop across the great Gandok Plain, where Geoffrey had once shot some Ovis ammon (the great wild sheep of Tibet) some years before the war. His knowledge of the ground saved them, for he led the way down, down into the great ravine of the Hop Gadh, three thousand feet in depth, and shook off their pursuers once more as they threaded northwards along the sandy bottom. But they were again discovered as they climbed the farther side, and only reached the top by a narrow path riding through an intermittent but persistent fusillade.

"At this rate we will soon reach Shipki and the main Hindustan-Tibet road," thought Geoffrey, but even as they were nearing this goal they found a large band of the enemy in front heading them off. "Sahib," said Jogaroo, "I know this land. I have trade here often. I can lead you over the Gugerang Pass to Bashahr, my own country. But the way is very difficult."

Gladly Geoffrey agreed, for there seemed no other way out, and they turned due south once more, creeping along ravine bottoms, or clinging to the shadows of hills and cliffs. They no longer marched by night. The road was too rough and too uncertain. They trusted to cover and hoped for the best.

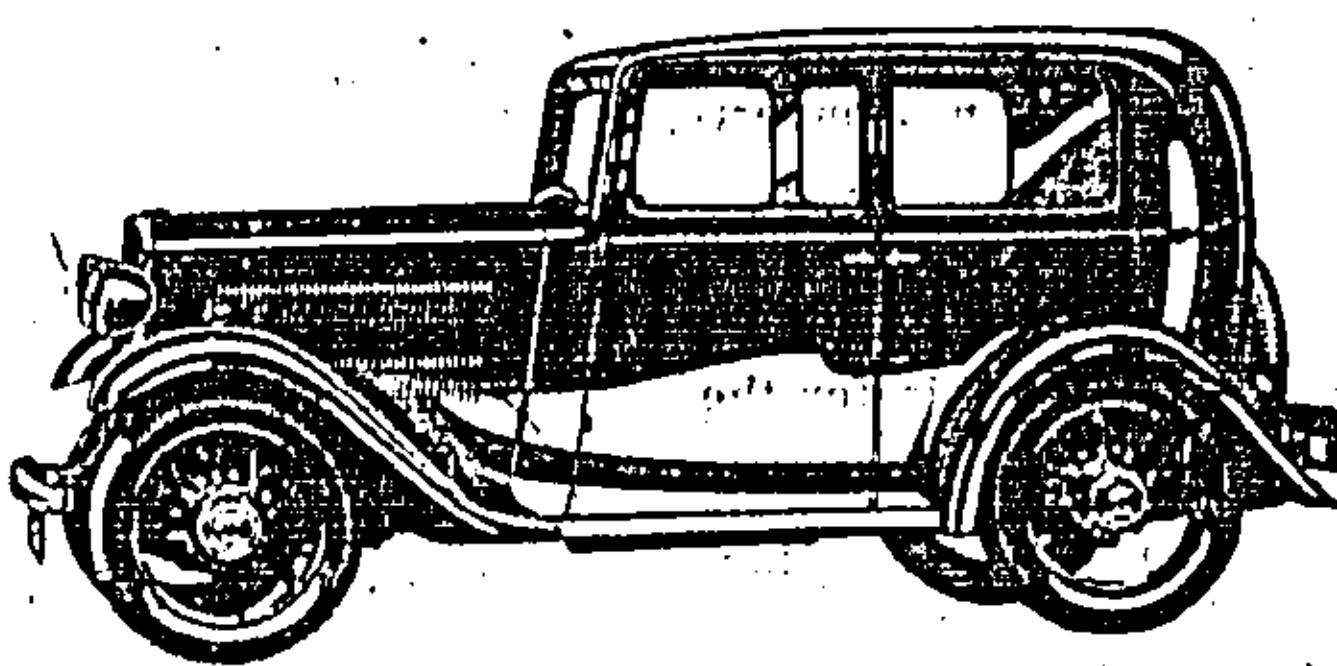

At last success seemed really within their grasp. "To-morrow," said Jogaroo, "we will cross the pass."

MOTORING NOTES.

NO STREAMLINING WITH 4 WHEELS.

U.S. Engineer's Contention.

Frank S. Spring of Detroit, automobile engineer, has declared that a perfectly streamlined automobile cannot be designed with four wheels.

For this reason Mr. Spring predicts the automobiles of the future will have only three wheels.

Apprehensiveness Is Good Trait

Being Prepared For The Unexpected

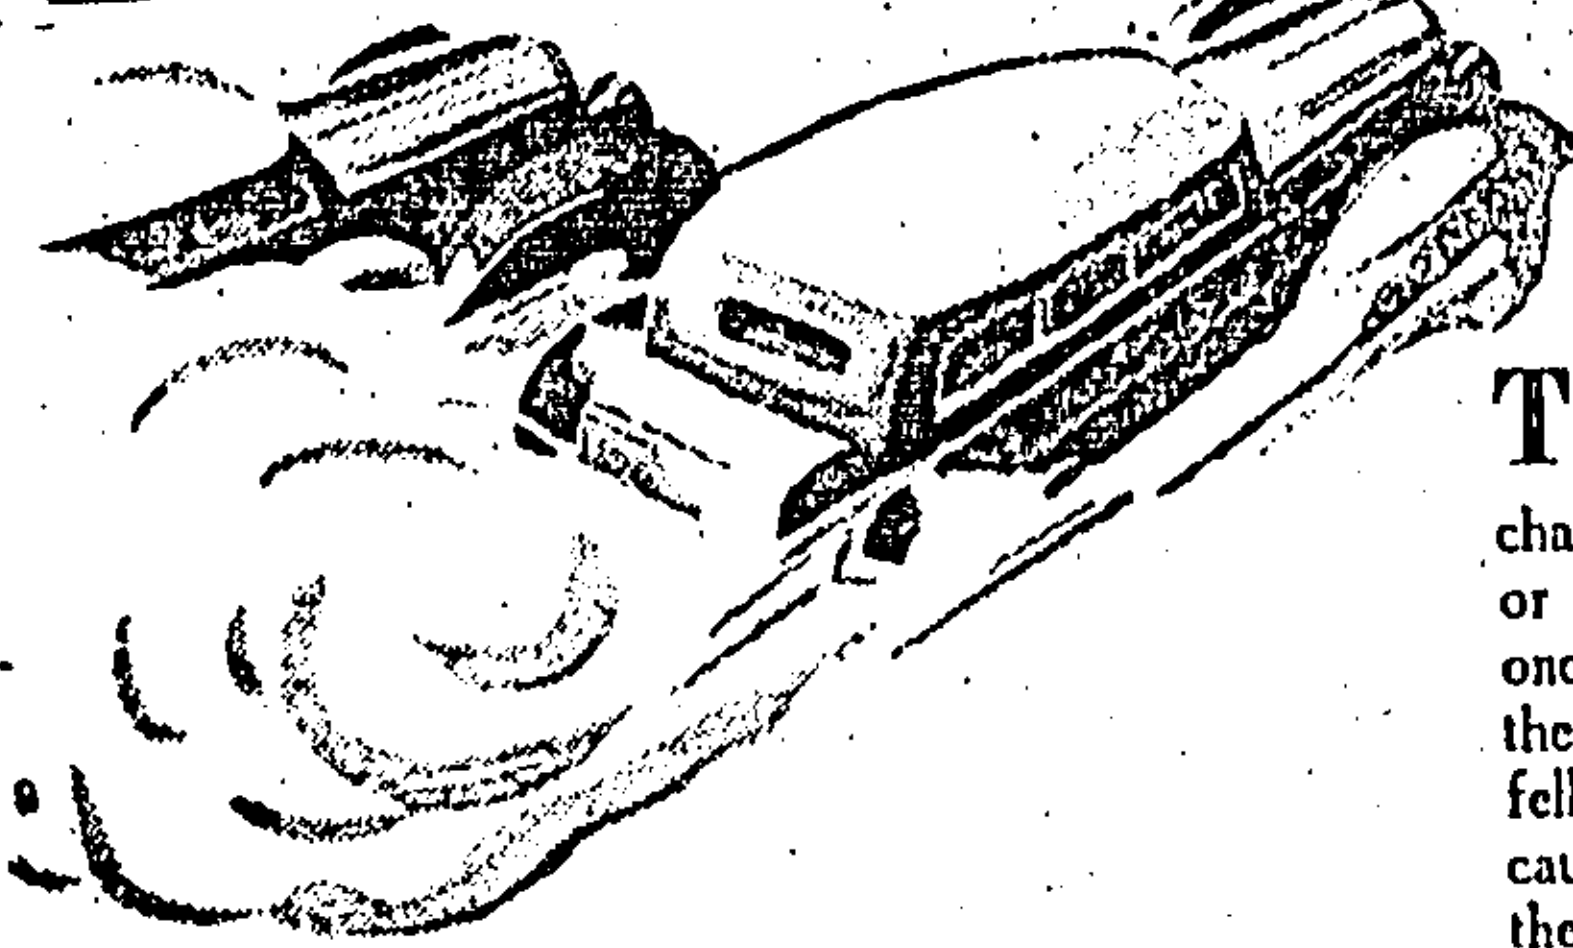

Apprehensiveness is often mistaken for nervousness. It is nothing of the kind. Quickness of apprehension, in its right sense and application, in an attribute which should be possessed by all drivers of a vehicle with such vast potentialities as the modern motorcar.

All road accidents happen suddenly. Their occurrence is more likely to be minimized by anticipation than by non-expectance. The good driver is prepared always for the unexpected.

FARM PRODUCE FOR MOTOR-CAR.

CONTRACT BRIDGE NOTES

By "CLAY"

[These notes are written by one of the Colony's Leading Bridge players who is prepared to solve any problem for readers. All communications should be addressed to "Contract Bridge" c/o The Sunday Herald.]

Article No. 4.

Since the dawn of Bridge there has been a certain fascination about the call of No-Trumps. What a heartening sound for the Partner, what a Harbinger of doom for the opponent. Ideas changed, the powerful hands of former days gave place to the flippant, cheeky Ace and a prayer hands of the pre-contract decade, the expression "Well Partner I had a dealers No-Trumper" became a common-place. What of the present.

At first sight it appears easier to win a game by making nine tricks rather than ten or eleven and in a number of cases no doubt it is so. It is well to remember however that the No-Trumper has no general reserve of long trumps, certain tricks, which can be brought into play at critical moments. It must stand or fall by its own big guns and those of Dummy. If a breach is once made in the defences the guns may be unable to hold the fort. What sort of hand plays best in No-Trumps. No hard and fast rules can be laid down. At present we are only considering the question from the point of view of the Dealer. He has nothing to go on but the appearance of his own thirteen cards. The type of hand that will appeal to him, is one, with the 2, 3, 3, 4 distribution owing to the difficulty of finding a suitable trump opening. It does not follow at all that this is the best type, since the cardinal point in playing No-Trumps is the establishment of long suits, but it has assets. Whatever suit Partner may select, the Dealer will have therein at least normal support. There are however other considerations. A No-Trump opening forces Partner to bid at least two of something, if he is to support at all. This may tend to exclude the passing of cheap information in the early stages. After a hand which the Dealer hopes eventually to play at No-Trumps is better opened with a minor suit call of one. A trustworthy Partner will realize that he is given an opportunity to indicate strength for a further call by the Dealer, and may be able to make a major suit call of one, on four cards headed by A 10 or K Q, should his hand justify support. This may be invaluable information to the Dealer. On the other hand most Partners will fight shy of calling two of a major suit with a bid, this information is rather negative and the Dealer may pass. A number of opportunities being thus missed of making game. Admittedly the opponents are equally handicapped, but a No-Trumper is more easily upset than a suit contract, a cautious opponent with a long suit may be well content to set tight. The Dealer must weigh the pros and cons. If he has real strength distributed throughout the suits and intends to go to game provided his Partner can raise him one, then the No. Trump is probably the best opening. In cases of really powerful hands a two-No-Trump bid, is a strong invitation to Partner to give one raise on minimum support. Finally the Dealer should ask himself "How do I want the lead." If he has tenace holdings it will be useful to have the opening come up to him, likewise his hand is probably powerful, and is better concealed from the Enemy. Should he start with a suit and his Partner call the original No-Trump, neither of these conditions will be fulfilled. This point is often over looked.

I shall add that a number of notable writers on the game prefer a minor suit opening or a good four card major in preference to No-Trumps, but the No-Trump opening is a attack. Here are three hand which may serve to illustrate these points.

South Dealer. On this type of hand an opening bid of the minor suit is best. South is hoping for a Heart or Spade response on either of which he will bid game, 3. No-Trumps or four Spades. North has 3. playing tricks and though his holding in Hearts is weak he is not increasing the contract by calling One Heart.

D.-10 6 5
C.-10 9 8

SOUTH:-

S.-A Q 8 5
H.-8 2
D.-K Q 8
C.-A Q 7 6

South Dealer. In this case the best opening is one No. Trump. If North can call at all. South will be justified in going on with the No-Trumps as the lead must come up to him and he can get in quickly to establish his long suit. He is not particularly afraid of any suit, and it will be better to have the location of his Court cards hidden from the opponents.

SOUTH:-

S.-K 8 5

C.-A 10 7 6

South Dealer. Opens with two No-trumps, North has one Ace equivalent to two-playing tricks. He should bid three Hearts. South will bid three No-Trumps. With only four Hearts in his hand North would still be correct in giving one raise but in this case I advocate three No-Trumps. The reason being that some Partners with South's holdings will be apt to call four Hearts over the three Heart response, with an idea of trying for bigger things. Within give in suit, headed by the Ace 10, four hearts can safely be left in by North but with only four he will have to bid four No-Trumps which may lead to trouble, or take the risk of playing a four heart contract, without long trumps.

U.S. SENATE PROCEEDINGS SUMMARISED

"Gold Bill Protects
"Uncle Sam."

"IN MONETARY WAR FOR LOWER CURRENCIES"

Washington, Yesterday.
In the course of yesterday's debate in which the Senate voted to give the Secretary of the Treasury sole jurisdiction over the stabilisation fund, the Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, Senator Key Pittman, urged the extension of the President's powers to enable him to give silver certificates instead of actual silver dollars in exchange, for silver bullion.

Senator Reed denounced the probable effects of the Bill and declared that the stabilisation fund would create an artificial market for the Government's bonds, and was tantamount to "pegging" for which the bankers had been condemned.

The Democratic leader, Senator Robinson, retorted that all that Senator Reed proposed was to continue ex-President Hoover's laissez faire policy.

Senator Bailey championed the Bill as designed to protect "Uncle Sam" in the monetary war with depreciated currency nations, and to relieve the tremendous burden of debt from the American people.

Senator Borah advocated the re-monetisation of silver to broaden the world's monetary base, declaring that there was a shortage and maldistribution of gold.

The Monetary Bill attempted to meet the problem by sub-dividing gold, but it would not help the rest of the world, Senator Borah said.

Senator Wheeler introduced an amendment directing the Government to purchase silver until it reaches a ratio of 16 to 1 to gold.

Later.
The Senate agreed to vote at 2 p.m. to-day on Senator Wheeler's amendment which proposes that the Government should purchase 50,000,000 ounces of silver monthly until a 16 to 1 ratio to gold has been reached, or until 1,000,000,000 ounces have been bought.

"NO RETURN TO METALLIC STANDARD"

Opposed By British Banker.

A POLICY OF CHEAP AND ABUNDANT MONEY

London, Yesterday.

Opposition to an early return to a metallic basis for British currency was expressed by the Rt. Hon. Reginald McKenna, Chairman of the Midland Bank, at the annual meeting of shareholders yesterday.

He said that the success of a policy of cheap and abundant money in maintaining the general average of prices at a level which rendered production profitable, was beyond question.

World trade might still be disorganised, exchanges chaotic, international dealings accompanied by prohibitive tariffs and quotas, and other restrictions, yet notwithstanding all these obstacles, the trade of Britain had for many months been making steady and gratifying progress.

The international situation seemed unripe for the restoration of a universal monetary basis and gain from universality was the only consideration which should be allowed to tempt the country back to a metallic standard.

He urged that until the world had learned how to secure exchange stability without jeopardy to the stability of purchasing power, Britain's inflexible task should be to demonstrate that wise management of a monetary unit with no fixed attachment to gold was both practical and in its results, highly beneficial.—British Wireless Service.
